CLING TO RIGGING AS SHIP POUNDS

Captain and Cook of the Annie Jordan Face Peril as Life-Savers Vainly Try to Reach Them.

SAYBROOK POINT, Conn., Dec. 1.—The three-masted schooner Annie Jordan, Capt. Lee, bound from Norfolk, Va., for New London with a cargo of lumber, is ashore on a sandbar just east of the jetties, off this point. Seas driven by the strong northwest wind were breaking over her this forenoon. Two tug boats sent out from here by the Hartford and New York Transportation Company were unable on account of shoal water to go near enough to the schooner to get a tow-line aboard.

Five members of the crew were landed at Blackhall, three miles from here, but the captain and cook are still on the schooner. When last seen they were in the rigging, signalling for help.

The schooner is said to have mistaken the Saybrook light for the New London light, and to have attempted to make a harbor here, thinking she had arrived at the schooner's destination.

When the vessel struck she began to leak badly, and was prevented from sinking only by constant working of the pumps. Should the wind die down, it is thought that the schooner may be pulled off the bar without much damage. A wrecker from the Scott Wrecking Company of New London has been sent for.

The schooner Annie Jordan was built in Saybrook, Me., in 1878. Her net tonnage is 337, length 121 feet, and depth 23 feet.

the loan, but which he will not get now. Fifty thousand dollars more is not due for a year yet, so Mr. Newton has no legal claim to collect at this time. The balance is estimated with certain interest at $78,000 and that is what Mrs. Chadwick will pay.

"We do not believe that Mr. Newton could possibly have forced this collection in New York City, but we are anxious to do the right thing so long as unreasonable claims are not made upon us."

Mrs. Chadwick, between her skirmishes to banks for money, is preparing a statement for the public, which she announces will be ready this afternoon. It will consist of five chapters. The first will be devoted to proof that she is not the notorious Mrs. Devere, the second to proof that she never used the name of Andrew Carnegie in any business transaction, the third will be a history of her early life, the fourth the story of her different marriages and the fifth will offer positive proof that she has never made a borrowing when she did not have ample security to cover it.

Mr. Powers said to-day it was true that two years ago Mrs. Chadwick turned over $2,500,000 to her husband. He added that she has about $1,000,000 of her own left.

"It is no one's business what Mrs. Chadwick did with all the money she borrowed," added Mr. Powers, "and it is no one's business where she got her large fortune. If Mrs. Chadwick chooses to tell it in the statement she is preparing well and good. But she does not at present think her private affairs are the business of anybody but herself."

Mrs. Chadwick has paid all her bills at the Holland House and is said to be packing up to leave for Cleveland to-day. She has engaged a private car for the trip and will take a physician with her. Mrs. Chadwick has a penchant for private cars, for last winter she brought a whole party from Cleveland in a private car for a single performance of "Parsifal," starting back right after the show.

I. Reynolds, secretary and treasurer of the Wade Park Banking Company, of Cleveland, who is supposed to have in his possession most of Mrs. Chadwick's securities, stated in an interview to-day that if the Newton claim was settled the other claims would doubtless be liquidated within a few days. Mr. Reynolds declined to make any statement concerning the securities held by him for Mrs. Chadwick. A force of experts is at work on the books of the Wade Park Banking Company, and Mr. Reynolds says the statement will show the bank in first-class condition, and that Mrs. Chadwick owes it only about $17,000, which is secured by collateral of undoubted value.

with her husband's relatives in the parlor. "It is a lie," she cried, "it is a lie. I tried to get him on the phone I tried all night to find him. I tried to get you on the phone this morning. I say it is all a lie."

Then she broke down utterly and was taken to the rear of the house. In the meantime George Lynch, of No. 322 West Forty-fourth street, the cabman, was telling a strange story of an all-night drive.

"I drive for Frawley's stable, at No. 1 West Forty-fourth street," said Lynch. "I often drove Mr. and Mrs. Paddock around town. They were fond of life and were known at many of the night restaurants. Last night at about 10 o'clock Mrs. Paddock called up the stable and asked that I be sent to the house with a hansom. When I got there half an hour later she told me that her husband had not come home and that she wanted to find him. She asked me to drive to all the places where he would be, and I did so."

"First we drove to Jack's. We went in and after a time came out and said he wasn't there. Then we drove to Donohue's at Forty-seventh street and Broadway, to the Vendome, the Imperial and the Marlborough. We stopped at each place and she went in. I remained there quite awhile. Early this morning we got back to Donohue's, and there Mrs. Paddock tried to call up her husband on the telephone. I tried also, but neither of us could get the number."

How She Got the News.
"We kept driving around and driving around, but so sleepy I could hardly sit on the seat, until we heard newsboys hollering 'All about the suicide.' Mrs. Paddock ordered me to pull up to the curb, and she bought a paper. There was the story on the first page about her husband killing himself. We drove right down town with Jesse Stearns and remained there quite awhile. Early this morning we got back to Donohue's, and there Mrs. Paddock tried to call up her husband on the telephone. I tried also, but neither of us could get the number."

SLOAN BEATEN IN CASE IN FRANCE
PARIS, Dec. 1.—Advocate-General Rondelet today submitted to the Court of Appeals his opinion that the lower court had erred in giving a judgment favorable to Tod Sloan, the American jockey against the Jockey Club. The opinion says the club is the exclusive judge of discipline within its precincts. This opinion forebodes the judgment of the Court of Appeals, which was postponed for a week.

The Court of Appeals at Paris, Nov. 17, heard the appeal of the French Jockey Club against the decision of a lower court favorable to Tod Sloan in the suit for $50,000 damages which the jockey brought against the club for being warned off the turf in connection with Ross de Ma's winning the Prix de Diane at the Chantilly races in May, 1903.

ROBBERS FIRE ON VICTIM.
Isaac Jordan, After Being Knocked Down, Is Shot At.

Isaac Jordan, twenty-three years of age, of No. 27 Stanton street, was attacked by highwaymen at Thirty-fifth street and Eighth Avenue early to-day, and when he had been knocked down and beaten he drew a revolver and fired three shots. They all went wild.

The highwaymen ran, but several of them drew weapons and fired. A swarm of policemen ran up. They said Isaac had been fired. No one was hurt, however.

Jordan showed a permit to carry and use his revolver when occasion arose, and Sergeant Plance, thinking he had occasion, let him go free.
